Tension along the String

Solution:

The correct answer is b.)

Note that we have assumed that the string is massless, so the spatial distribution of mass will not affect its tension. If the tension along the string varied, the equilibrium condition would be destroyed, causing the string to move.